

The Counterfeit Coin: A Christian Analysis of the Two-Arm Assault on Truth, Medicine, and the Soul

by Dr. Jeffrey E. Hansen, Ph.D.

Where This Came From—And Why I'm Speaking Now

This analysis is the result of extended dialogue within a private research group I belong to—a group of conservative, Bible-believing Christian professionals, including physicians, psychologists, scholars, and policy experts. We're not interested in conspiracy theories for their own sake. We're interested in truth, discernment, and defending what is good, especially when it comes to protecting children.

We've been discussing patterns we see emerging globally and locally—spiritually, medically, and ideologically. I've taken our shared concerns, prayed on them, and shaped this reflection with a bit of help from ChatGPT to clarify the threads and strengthen the language. But the message, conviction, and urgency are all my own.

Here's what I've come to see more clearly: two arms are working in tandem to reshape the world, and neither of them is aligned with truth or freedom. One is spiritual, the other political, and both are animated by a deeper rebellion against God.

Arm One: The Spiritual Engine of Darkness

The first arm is spiritual—religious even—but rooted in darkness. It hides in elite societies such as Freemasonry, the Bilderberg Group, and what many refer to as the Illuminati. These are not harmless old-boy clubs. They're structured systems of hidden knowledge, esoteric rites, and spiritual rebellion.

This rebellion centers around the pursuit of power apart from God, and ultimately, worship of the self, which is to say, worship of Satan. Behind the secrecy is the oldest heresy: "You will be like God."

Luciferian strands of thought run through these systems—not always visibly, but unmistakably when you trace their goals. The objective isn't merely to stay hidden. The objective is spiritual subversion, where human sovereignty replaces divine authority, and false light replaces true revelation.

We deceive ourselves if we think this is irrelevant to the world of policy, science, or culture. The serpent still whispers. The lie just wears a suit now.

Arm Two: The Political Machine—Born of Communism, Rebranded as Progress

The second arm is political, and increasingly totalitarian in nature. At its root, it is Communist in origin, an ideology that rejects God, redefines truth as a tool of power, and seeks to dissolve the individual into the collective. But today, it has been rebranded.

Modern Marxism has gone cultural. It no longer marches under the banner of workers' revolutions. Now, it advances through critical theory, radical progressivism, identity politics, and state-enforced ideologies around race, gender, and sexuality. It sounds like liberation, but it functions like control. The slogans have changed. The spirit has not.

This machine is rapidly dismantling the traditional family, erasing national borders, suppressing biblical faith, and elevating the collective over the individual, the state over the family, and ideology over biology. It champions the “liberation” of man, by first severing him from everything that anchors him: family, God, identity, and even reality itself.

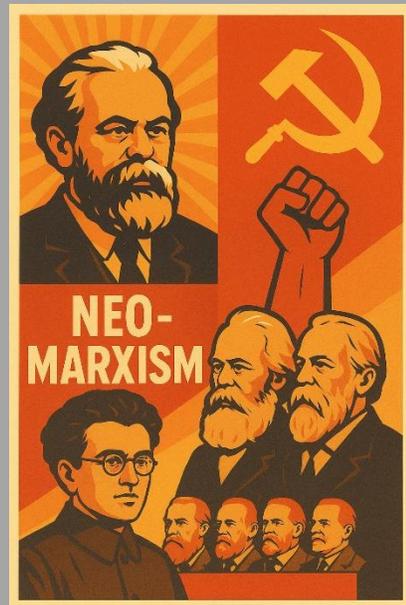

What we are seeing today is not a standalone political phenomenon, but a continuation of the same rebellion that fueled 20th-century Communism. Today's neo-Marxism is Communism rebranded and spiritualized. The tactics have changed, but the endgame is the same: the severing of man from God and the reconstruction of society on rebellion.

This ideological machine captures institutions with language that sounds noble: equity, justice, tolerance, liberation. But beneath the surface is the same brutal impulse to dominate, divide, and deconstruct. Academic institutions, public health bureaucracies, Big Tech, entertainment, and government agencies are now the frontline actors in what has become a global cultural revolution.

Thinkers such as Andrew Łobaczewski, in his work Political Ponerology, have laid out how evil embeds itself in political systems through the psychological manipulation of institutions, allowing sociopathic and pathocratic forces to rise through bureaucracies and centralize control. Likewise, Michael Rectenwald, in The Great Reset and the Struggle for Liberty, exposes how globalist power brokers aim to erase the self in favor of a collectivist digital tyranny.

Ordinary people feel it. Teachers fear speaking out. Doctors are threatened with de-licensure for not using a child's “preferred pronouns.” Pastors tiptoe around topics they once preached on boldly. It's soft totalitarianism—coated in virtue-signaling language but enforced with hard consequences.

This is not a new moral order. It is the old Marxist rebellion, repackaged for the 21st century.

Kolbe Saw This Alliance in His Day

We're not the first generation to face this. St. Maximilian Kolbe, who resisted both Nazism and Communism before laying down his life at Auschwitz, clearly identified what he called "the free alliance between Freemasonry and Communism." He did not see them as isolated movements. He saw them as collaborators in a spiritual rebellion, both working to sever mankind from truth, from Christ, and from divine authority.

Kolbe understood that this was not simply a political battle, but a cosmic one. Freemasonry's hidden spiritual rebellion and Communism's overt atheism were not enemies, but co-conspirators—serving different functions in the same war against the soul of man.

He didn't retreat in silence. He founded the Militia Immaculata, launched publications, and mobilized believers to resist not with violence, but with clarity, holiness, and spiritual courage. Kolbe reminds us that resistance to evil is not hate—it is love in action.

The WEF and CCP: A Global Merger of Power

Today, we see the same alliance resurfacing under different names. The World Economic Forum (WEF), dressed in Western business attire, preaches "inclusion," "sustainability," and "stakeholder capitalism." Meanwhile, the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) runs a brutal surveillance regime. On paper, they should be enemies. But in reality, they're converging.

Why?

Because they share a vision, a vision of centralized control, erased individual liberty, and a future where personal autonomy is replaced with technocratic dominance. Whether it's ESG scores, digital currency, biometric tracking, or AI censorship, they want a world where everything is managed, everything is watched, and God is nowhere to be found.

They'll cooperate until one threatens the other's grip on power. That's not prophecy. That's history. As someone in our group put it, "The Left eventually eats its own."

How Global Agendas Filter Down to the Children

This isn't just about geopolitics or billionaires in Davos. These ideologies filter downward, into medicine, education, social policy, and legal precedent.

The Bilderbergers influence financial and political institutions. The WEF embeds with Big Tech and Pharma. The CCP exports surveillance models and ideological discipline. These powers don't use bullets. They use policy, money, and narrative. They don't need tanks. They use schools, algorithms, and medical boards.

Which brings us to the ground level, our children.

The Medical Capture of Children: The Transgender Agenda

Few things show the moral collapse more clearly than the transgender movement's infiltration of medicine.

Gender clinics now fast-track confused children toward irreversible interventions: puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, double mastectomies, and genital surgeries. Children who can't legally drive are being given drugs that can render them sterile. And parents who object are threatened with loss of custody.

This is not compassion. It's state-sponsored trauma.

There is no reliable long-term evidence supporting this care model. There is mounting evidence of harm, regret, and psychological damage. But the machine moves forward, protected by law, shielded from criticism, and backed by billions.

Those of us in psychology, pediatrics, and family counseling have seen the price firsthand. This is not just medical malpractice. It is moral abuse, cloaked in "affirmation."

We are not against people with gender dysphoria. We are against the mutilation of children and the silencing of those who try to protect them. What began as rebellion in elite spiritual and political halls is now playing out in pediatric exam rooms.

Why It Matters to Every Christian—and Every American

If you're a believer, a parent, a clinician, or simply a moral citizen—you are already in this battle. Whether you choose to engage or not, the war has come to your doorstep.

You are being asked to deny reality, celebrate lies, and remain silent while children are hurt. But God never called His people to silence. He called them to truth—even when the culture turns against it.

Don't Be Fooled by the Illusion of Unity

The Left often presents itself as unified. They vote in blocks. They speak in unison. But this isn't strength. It's ideological coercion.

The Right, for all its dysfunction, still allows debate. Within that space is room for truth to breathe. False unity, enforced from the top down, is not virtue; it's tyranny in drag.

A Call to Arms: What We Must Do Now

This is not a time for despair. It's a time for clarity and courage. Here's what we must do:

Pray Boldly and Consistently

We are in a spiritual war. Begin and end your day in prayer. Join with others. Ask for courage and discernment.

Speak the Truth—Out Loud

Don't whisper. Don't hedge. Speak clearly, graciously, and boldly about what is true, even when it costs.

Protect Your Children

Vet every school, curriculum, and doctor. Train them in truth at home. Don't outsource their worldview to the culture.

Support Those Who Resist

Encourage the pastors, teachers, and professionals who are speaking up. They are under pressure. Be their shield.

Build Parallel Institutions

We need Christian schools, clinics, and media networks. Stop feeding broken systems. Start building alternatives.

Engage in Local Action

Run for school board. Testify at council meetings. Start a parent group. Local obedience is global resistance.

Stay Rooted in the Word

The world is noisy. Ground yourself in Scripture—not Twitter. Let truth shape your courage.

Final Thoughts: Hold the Line

This is the moment for which we've been called. Not to escape. Not to appease. But to stand.

We are watching two arms of rebellion rise—spiritual and political. But the Church still stands. The gospel still saves. And people like you and me are still here—for a reason.

So, let's be found faithful.

Let's be found standing.
